Purpose and scope

These Terms of Engagement record the standard terms on which Bird & Yang provides insurance-related advisory and support services. They should be read together with any disclosure statement, service proposal, product information, insurer document, privacy notice, or written scope we provide to you.

Where regulated financial advice is provided, it will be provided only by a person who is legally authorized to provide that advice and subject to the applicable financial advice disclosure and conduct requirements.

Services we may provide

- understanding your insurance needs and objectives;
- assisting with insurance applications, renewals, policy comparisons, policy administration, and insurer communications;
- supporting car, home, contents, business, personal risk, or other insurance matters within our agreed scope;
- helping you understand key policy features, exclusions, premium information, disclosure obligations, and insurer requirements;
- referring you to another specialist where a matter is outside our scope or authority.

What we do not provide

Unless expressly agreed in writing, we do not provide legal advice, tax advice, investment advice, financial planning, actuarial advice, claims advocacy beyond the agreed scope, or advice on insurance products outside our authorization or expertise. We do not guarantee that an insurer will accept an application, offer cover, maintain cover, pay a claim, or provide a particular premium or policy term. Insurers make their own underwriting and claims decisions.

Client responsibilities

You are responsible for giving accurate, complete, and current information. Insurance decisions may depend on the information you provide, and incomplete or incorrect information may affect cover, premiums, claims, or policy validity.

You must promptly tell us or the insurer about material changes in your circumstances, risk profile, property, business, health, vehicle use, occupation, or other information relevant to your insurance.

Fees, commissions, and insurer payments

We will explain, where relevant, whether we are paid by fees, commission, insurer remuneration, referral arrangements, or a combination of these. Any applicable fees, commissions, conflicts of interest, or complaints information will be disclosed as required by law or good practice.

Premiums, levies, policy fees, insurer charges, and other third-party costs are payable in accordance with insurer or product provider requirements.

Confidentiality, privacy, and information sharing

We may collect, use, store, and disclose personal and insurance information to provide services, obtain quotes, assist with applications or claims, comply with obligations, and communicate with insurers, underwriters, premium funders, assessors, regulators, and approved service providers.

We will take reasonable steps to protect your information and will handle personal information in accordance with applicable privacy obligations.

Conflicts, complaints, and service standards

We will act professionally, with due care, skill, and diligence. If a conflict of interest arises, we will explain the conflict and how it will be managed or advise if we cannot continue acting.

If you have a concern about our service, please raise it with us promptly.

Where regulated financial advice is involved, applicable complaint and dispute resolution information will be provided in accordance with disclosure requirements.

Termination

Either party may end the engagement by giving written notice. Termination does not affect accrued rights, unpaid fees or charges, confidentiality, privacy, or record-keeping obligations.

Acceptance

By signing below, the client confirms that they have read, understood, and accepted these Terms of Engagement for Insurance Services. If signing for a company, trust, partnership, organization, or another person, the signatory confirms that they have authority to do so.
